NORMAL -- A local college student received some state-wide recognition for her efforts in promoting organ donation.

Secretary of State Jesse White honored Illinois Central College student Audrey Williams in Normal Friday.

Williams won a statewide contest with the You Tube video she made about a little girl who received a heart transplant.

Williams says the process helped her educate her loved ones about the importance of signing up again with Illinois' new donor registry.

"I sent an email out to all my co-workers and friends and family encouraging them all to sign up again, and every body I talked to didn't know you had to sign up again," said Williams. If you signed up to be an organ and tissue donor earlier than January 1st 2006, you need to sign up again.
